

ÆSOP AND HIS FABLES.

History of the Man Made Famous to "Evening World" Readers.

Born a Slave, but His Wit Won Him a High Position.

Æsop, whose fables have instructed the world in a wise philosophy for more than 3,000 years, was born about 620 B. C.

By birth he was a slave, but so famous did he become that the honor of being his birthplace is claimed by Sardinia, the capital of Lydia, a colony of Thrace, and by Colossium, the chief city of Phrygia.

Æsop was owned as a slave first by Xanthus, and then by Xanthus, both citizens of Sardinia. Xanthus took him to Athens, Greece, one day, and told him that because he was so witty he would make him free, with all the privileges of a freedman in the Republic of Athens.

WELD FOR ANOTHER'S CRIME.

Anton Craft Evidently a Victim of Mistaken Identity.

Two Men Now Under Arrest for the Assault on Mrs. Salitzer.

Anton Craft, twenty-one years old, living at 312 West Twentieth street, a driver for Ferdinand Neuman & Co., brewers, is today confined in the Jefferson Market Prison on the charge of having feloniously assaulted Mrs. Charlotte Salitzer, seventy years old, of 248 West Thirty-first street.

He has been imprisoned since Tuesday, yet he is entirely innocent of the offense charged, as was clearly demonstrated in today's preliminary proceedings in the case, when August Beck, forty-two years old, who drives a beer-wagon for the Moerlein Brewing Company, of 120 Pearl street, was arraigned before Justice Kelly for the same offense.

Craft is a victim of mistaken identity, and his arrest and detention are due to the position which he was identified as Mrs. Salitzer's assailant, both by herself and by Mrs. Bertha Tenney who lives in the same house with her.

Both men are almost identical in build, each being about two feet four inches in height. But there the similarity ends. Beck is just twice the age of Craft.

On Friday morning last a man called at Mrs. Salitzer's flat and demanded a box of empty beer bottles. He was told that there were no bottles there belonging to him, but he pushed past the old lady and went to an ice-box in a rear room. Mrs. Salitzer followed, and it was at that time that the alleged assault was committed.

A pet dog, attracted by the struggles of Mrs. Salitzer, ran to the door of the room occupied by Mrs. Tenney, and by whining and scratching the panels, attracted her attention to what was taking place.

She saw Mrs. Salitzer in the grasp of the stranger, who, as soon as she appeared, released his hold and ran swiftly from the place.

The case was reported to the West Thirty-seventh street station, and Ward Detective George Smith was detailed to investigate. He was followed by the assailant, who was identified as Beck, and he was arrested.

Craft vehemently asserted his innocence. He is the younger man, who has been married but six months, to be innocent, and they recognized the first man as the assailant. It was learned that a wagon of the Moerlein Brewery stood outside the house on the night of the assault, and last night at the Moerlein stables, 178 Suffolk street, Mrs. Tenney made a partial confession by acknowledging his presence in the flat at the night of the assault.

Justice Kelly sharply criticized Mrs. Tenney for her postscript of the two identification photographs. He said that the photographs were not taken at the time of the assault, and that the man who was identified as Beck was not the man who was identified as Beck.

He recommended that Mrs. Tenney be paid $5,000 for examination. The latter made a partial confession by acknowledging his presence in the flat at the night of the assault.

PLUNGING THE KNIFE DEEPER.

Only the Skin Taken Off the School Building Frauds Yet.

Contractor Keogh Says the Investigators Make Him Tired.

There are lively times in prospect for those who have been charged with frauds in connection with the erection of new school buildings during the past six years.

The committee on Buildings, of the Board of Education, which unearthed the startling condition of affairs set forth in its report, is going right along with its investigation.

The committee believes that they have only got at the surface frauds as yet, and that a more careful and thorough examination of many of the new buildings will result in the disclosure of others still more serious than the ones already perpetrated upon the city by the contractors.

The first thing which will be done by the committee—and its members say today that they are going to lose no time—is to appoint a committee of six building experts to examine and report on all school buildings constructed during the last six years.

The committee will consist of a practical man representing each department of the building trades, a practical plumber, a steamfitter, a carpenter, a mason, a painter and a bricklayer.

There were forty-one buildings erected for the Board of Education during the period of ex-Supt. Debevoise's incumbency, and each one of these will be visited and examined.

Mr. Snyder, the present superintendent of School Buildings, will assist the committee of experts in making its investigations. If necessary, floors will be torn up and walls stripped off to discover evidence of fraud.

Debevoise's frauds, which were frequently alluded to in the report, were not limited to the use of inferior materials, but included the use of inferior workmen and the use of inferior methods.

Commissioner Little, who has just resigned his place in the Board, says that the Building Committee of which he was chairman did not conduct its investigation for the purpose of damaging Mr. Debevoise. When it was begun, he was not aware of the frauds which were being perpetrated.
